

Together we can solve hunger

Benefitting:

Feeding America

For 35 years, Feeding America has responded to the hunger crisis in America by providing food to people in need through a nationwide network of food banks. Developed by John van Hengel in Phoenix, AZ in the late 1960s, today Feeding America is the nation's largest domestic hunger-relief organization—a powerful and efficient network of 200 food banks across the country.

Together we can solve hunger

One of the most common misconceptions is the assumption if someone is hungry, that means they do not have a job and are living on the streets. What most people don't understand is that anyone can experience hunger. It is a silent epidemic that affects more than 49 million Americans. According to the US Census Bureau, in 2008, 19 million people lived in working-poor families. This translates into nearly 9 percent of all American families living below 100 percent of poverty have at least one family member working.
